

MORE DRAWING PROMPTS !!!!

- Take a short walk. Draw the things you observe along the way.
- Spontaneously draw an animal from observation.
- Watch a movie on a computer or television. Pause the movie at a scene that you find visually interesting. Draw the scene in your sketchbook. Pay special attention to the position of people and objects within the scene.
- Blacken a page of your sketchbook with charcoal or graphite. Use an eraser to draw a subject. Focus on creating an illusion of form.
- Choose an object that has many negative shapes. In a sketchbook, draw only the negative shapes, taking care to locate them correctly in relation to each other.
- Consider a variety of objects and spaces, including ones you find in photographs. Compare the qualities of the things you've found and incorporate these items into a drawing.
- Draw a storyboard of your day using at least six boxes to capture the events.
- Draw a map of where you live now or where you grew up from your imagination
- Make one drawing in the shower. Make one drawing in response to that drawing.
- Find a sporting event on TV. Make 9 two-minute drawings while watching. Write the TV program info on the back.
- Find a drawing that you made in the past. Make one drawing that scales that drawing down, and one drawing scaling it up.
- Find a drawing that you made in the past. From the drawing, find a fragment and re-draw it to make a pattern that covers your entire piece of paper.
- Interview a friend or family member. Write their answers down. Draw on top of the writing (if you want to).
- Take a moment to think of something in your life that needs repair. Conceive this repair in 5 steps. Do not write down the thing that needs repair, just the steps that could be taken to do the repair. This is your drawing.
